

Select 1 Transport To Move GM Engineering Vehicles

First time GM Engineering has changed carriers since 1989.

Taylor, MI – Select 1 Transport, a global leader in specialized vehicle transportation, managed automotive logistics, and event marketing, has announced it has been chosen by General Motors to handle all specialized vehicle transport throughout the company's North American testing facilities.

The decision was made after an extensive search by the Detroit-based automaker. This is the first time General Motors has contracted with a new carrier for its North American Engineering vehicle transport needs since 1989.

Select 1 Transport is now responsible for specialized vehicle transport throughout General Motors' testing facilities in Michigan, Arizona, and Colorado. The deal also involves moving engineering vehicles, test vehicles, and concept vehicles to points around North America as the need arises.

"We are extremely excited to begin working with The New GM. I think this contract is indicative of Select 1 Transport's reputation for handling sensitive transportation needs for the world's leading automakers," said Pat Evo, Vice President and General Manager of Select 1 Transport.

Mr. Evo cited Select 1 Transport's ability to develop creative solutions to unique transportation challenges as a major reason the company excels in moving one-of-a-kind vehicles. He also noted that confidentiality in such moves is crucial in the highly competitive automotive market.

"Transporting test and concept vehicles requires a highly focused attention to detail. This is a key component to being successful in our industry," said Gary Carlson, President and CEO of Select 1 Transport.

"In today's economic climate, automakers demand world-class solutions at extremely competitive rates. Our company specializes in these moves so we know what we're doing. This makes us among the very few companies able to fulfill our contractual obligations with excellent customer service without charging exorbitant rates," said Rick Johnson, Director of Business Development for Select 1 Transport.
